RICHARD J. DALEY CENTER EARNS BOMA 360 BUILDING PERFORMANCE DESIGNATION

CHICAGO October 21, 2019 – MB Real Estate (MBRE) announced that Richard J. Daley Center recently received the BOMA 360 Performance Building designation for demonstrating the highest standards of excellence in property management. This recognition is part of a Building Owners and Managers Association (BOMA) program that sets the standard worldwide for operational best practices in the commercial real estate industry. MBRE has provided property management services for the downtown Chicago high-rise for over 20 years that houses the nation’s largest courthouse.

For building owners and managers, receiving the BOMA 360 label is a prestigious honor that evaluates buildings based on operations and management, life safety, security, risk management, training and education, energy and sustainability, as well as tenant relations and community involvement.

“Our Asset Management team, in collaboration with the building owner, the Public Building Commission of Chicago, have made the property’s operational efficiency a top priority, leading to improved sustainability, increased safety, and a higher level of visitor and tenant satisfaction,” said MBRE VP & General Manager Andre Wiggins. “We’re so proud to be recognized in the BOMA 360 Performance Program for all of our efforts.”

“MBRE is an active member of BOMA and is committed to providing best-in-class service to our clients, tenants, and the citizens of Chicago. The Daley Center is one of the nation’s largest courthouses with 30,000 daily visitors. Its plaza is also a major gathering place for many members of our community,” said MBRE SVP & Managing Director of Asset Management Suzanne Hendrick. “The BOMA 360 Performance designation is a testament to our success in being a steward for such a key asset for our city.”
